LOCAL MEMORIAL SERVICES ATTENDED BY HUGE CONGREGATIONS

Impressive Simplicity Marked the Union Service in the Old First Dutch Church, the Sixth Memorial for a Dead President Held in That Edifice—Other Services Held.

In accordance with time honored custom when a president of the United States dies, congregations of churches in the uptown section of the city of Kingston united at the First Reformed Dutch Church Friday afternoon for the purpose of paying their reverent tribute to President Harding.

The church edifice will seat about a hundred people. Every seat was occupied and many persons were standing to obtain admittance. Such was the condition when memorial services were held in the same church when Presidents Lincoln, Grant, McKinley and Roosevelt died, but no service of any kind was held there has been marked by greater reverence and impressive simplicity than that held in the memorial service.

Another time honored custom which was observed at the church was the tolling of the bell fifty-eight times preceding the memorial service, and fifty-eight times following the benediction—a tribute to the life of the president. The tolling of the bell for the first time was at the tolling of the bell for the first time. The tolling of the bell for the first time was at the tolling of the bell for the first time.

At 3 o'clock the soft tones of the bell were still vibrating from the steeple of the church when the organ within the edifice began to play the strains of Beethoven's "Adagio Cantabile." From the "Adagio Cantabile" the organ filled the church from carpeted floor to the lofty roof and thence pouring through the opened windows upon the streets, for Kingston was hushed during the hour set apart for a tribute to the dead president.

The quiet which was noticeable following the softly-dying strains of the "Adagio" was unbroken by any of the usual street sounds; within the church could be heard only the softened footfalls of the ushers and the becoming mourners. Then followed a period of silence.

At a quarter after three o'clock, the invocation was offered by the Rev. Dr. Putnam, Cady, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Rondout street. The invocation was followed by the singing of Cardinal Newman's famous hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," which was one of the two favorite hymns of President Harding. The choir of the First Reformed Church had been augmented by the choirs of the other churches which participated in the memorial service, and the entire congregation, standing, joined in the singing.

Judge Clearwater, who had been chosen by the constituency of the church to read the Kingston Ministerial Association to preside over the memorial service in the absence of the church's pastor, the Rev. Lucas Cady, announced the Scripture lessons, which were read by the Rev. Dr. Cady.

When the first Scripture selection, the twenty-third psalm, was read by Dr. Cady, the congregation arose in conformity with the custom of the First Reformed Church joined with the pastor in its reading.

The second Scripture selection was from Micah, 6:8—"He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God."

The third selection of Scripture was the first verse of the twenty-second chapter of The Revelation of St. John the Divine.

"And he showed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb.

"In the midst of the street of it, and on either side of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month; and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations.

"And there shall be no more curse, but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it; and his servants shall serve him:

"And they shall see his face, and his name shall be in their foreheads: and they need not candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light; and they shall reign forever and ever."

At the close of the congregational hymn of the twenty-third psalm, the congregation was seated, while the second and third selections of Scripture were read by Dr. Cady, who followed the reading with prayer.

Judge Clearwater spoke briefly and impressively.

"It has been our custom from the beginning," he said, "to hold a memorial service at the First Dutch Church in memory and in honor of the presidents of the United States. The records of the church show that a memorial service was held for George Washington. I have participated in such services for Presidents Lincoln, Grant, McKinley and Roosevelt, and our passing bell has tolled for years of all of them.

"There are few cities in the United States where ceremonies so

REPUBLICANS IN COUNTY CONVENTION

First Action is Adoption of Resolutions on Death of President Harding Followed by Silent Prayer—Nominations This Afternoon.

The unofficial Republican county convention convened in the Kingston Opera House this afternoon at 12:40 o'clock with Chairman Philip Elting presiding.

The roll call of delegates developed no contests and at the close Chairman Elting introduced Judge A. T. Clearwater.

Judge Clearwater presented and read the following memorandum and resolution, which unanimously were adopted by a rising vote:

"The Republicans of Ulster in convention assembled, in paying this tribute to the memory of the beloved president of the United States, so suddenly removed by the decree of an inscrutable but ever wise and beneficent Providence, express their profound sorrow at his death, and their deepest sympathy with the wonderful woman who so loyally, devotedly and unfailingly aided him in his illustrious career.

"Filling the greatest office in the gift of the American people, doubtless the most splendid and useful public station in the world, he came to it at one of the most overwhelming crises humanity has ever known.

"Confronted by a disheartened and sorrowing world, he faced the enormous problem of its rehabilitation with a courage, serenity and hopefulness which inspired the nations of the earth with the conviction that calamitous as the World War had been, colossal as was its toll of life and treasure, all was not lost in that honor was saved.

"With a modest acknowledgment that he lacked the divine attribute of infallibility, he surrounded himself with the ablest and most experienced advisors of his day, and with their aid, took up the reconstruction of an almost broken civilization amid which he stood a tower of strength, four square to all the winds that blew.

"This is hardly the time or place fully to recount his great achievements, but history forever faithfully will emblazon upon his escutcheon the conception and carrying out of the conference upon disarmament, one of the most epoch making gatherings the world has known. It is, however, his steadfastness, the simplicity and straightforwardness of his character and the earnestness and goodness of his heart that endeared him to the American people and to Philip Sidney. He had high-erected thoughts in the heart of courtesy, and like the great master in whose footsteps he so humbly followed, he loved his fellowmen.

"And as was truly said at the great gathering held in his memory and in his honor in the oldest house of worship in the county yesterday, 'he had the unselfishness, the gentleness and the courage which from the dawn of civilization men have revered and loved. He died as a soldier dies, in the service of his country, and the qualities of which I speak form his crown of life, as they it is which confer immortality.'

"Some men are influenced only by the intellectual side of their nature; some are influenced by their emotional side. President Harding throughout his life preserved an even balance between the intellectual and the emotional.

"We know what were his favorite hymns and most fittingly they form a distinctive part of this memorial service. It would seem appropriate also for us to embody in this service his favorite poetic extracts, and from a member of his Cabinet I learned by telegraph what they were."

Thereupon Judge Clearwater read the following poetic extracts, which long were President Harding's favorites:

The first was from George Eliot's "Choir Invisible":

O, may I join the choir invisible,
Of those immortal dead who live again
In minds made better by their presence,
Live.

In pulses stirred to generosity,
In deeds of daring rectitude,
In scorn
For miserable aims that end with self,
In thoughts sublime that pierce the night like stars,
And with their mild persistence
Urge man's search
To vaster issues."

The second was from Longfellow's "Resignation":

There is no death;
What seems so is transition.
This life of mortal breath
Is but the suburb of the life elysian,
Whose portal we call death."

Again the congregation arose to join the choir in singing the other favorite hymn of President Harding, "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

At the close of the hymn, the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Ebenezer O. Clarke, pastor of the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church. The organ postlude was Handel's "Largo," which was played by Miss Miriam Fox who presided at the organ throughout the service in the absence of W. Whiting Fredenburgh, organist and choirmaster of the church. Meantime the century-and-a-quarter old bell in the tall steeple again tolled fifty-eight times, once for each year that the President had lived.

The churches which united in the service were the First Reformed Dutch Church, St. James Methodist Church, the First Presbyterian Church of Rondout street, the Episcopal Church of Elmendorf street, the First Baptist Church of Albany Avenue, the Reformed Church of the Comforter at Wiltwyck, the Franklin Street African Methodist Episcopal Church and St. Mark's African Methodist Church of Foxhall avenue.

At Catholic Churches.

Votive Masses were offered in the Catholic Churches throughout the city and were attended by large congregations. These Masses were celebrated throughout the New York diocese in deference to the late lamented President Harding. The bulletin received by the pastors from Archbishop Patrick Hayes contained an eulogy of the late Chief Executive and were read at the services.

At Livingston St. Church.

The memorial services at the Livingston Street Lutheran Church in honor of the late President Harding on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock were largely attended. Professor F. Ehnes at the organ opened the service by playing Jensen's "Doulour." The male choir of the church then sang the late president's favorite hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light." The pastor read the 97th Psalm as the Scripture lesson and then the large congregation joined in singing.

CUNO GOVERNMENT NEAR END OF ITS OFFICIAL LIFE

Only Question Seems to be Attitude of United Socialist Party Toward Leader of German People's Party Who is Most Likely to Head New Government.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, Aug. 11.—The hours of the Cuno government apparently were numbered this afternoon. Resignation of the government already is discounted.

The chief element of the political situation was uncertainty whether Gustav Stresemann, of the German People's Party, who was spoken of as Chancellor Cuno's successor, would have the support of the United Socialist party.

If the Socialists support Stresemann, he may succeed in forming a coalition government with all factions represented except the communists.

Riots were narrowly averted here by settlement of the printers' strike, which tied up the money printing presses and payments by banks.

The food situation continues desperate, with hundreds of thousands facing famine. Even with a million marks in his pocket a German is poor today. His money will buy very little, even if there were a supply of food to be purchased. Farmers are boycotting the cities, refusing to accept paper marks for their produce.

The government is being urged to adopt the most vigorous measures even to the extent of imposing death sentence upon food hoarders.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 11.—President Calvin Coolidge will summon the Harding cabinet next Tuesday to its first session under the new administration. It was learned today.

The president probably will issue a call for the cabinet meeting during the day. A conference between the executive and Washington correspondents is expected to follow the session.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 11.—President Coolidge will "act firmly" to prevent a cessation of work in the anthracite coal fields, it was learned today.

The president is determined there shall be no shortage of fuel during the coming winter, with its attendant hardships and sufferings to the people, it was declared by his closest advisers. He is prepared to wield the proverbial "big stick" in forcing a settlement of differences between anthracite operators and miners.

The president has passed this ultimatum along to government officials in close touch with the situation. Above all he has told them there shall be no strike September 1, as was threatened when recent wage negotiations were stopped by operators and miners.

The anthracite problem is one of the new administration's most critical and immediate concerns. Mr. Coolidge has realized it, too, for he told his advisers that some way must be found to prevent a strike and to insure continuous production of fuel.

The president has been told that the real crisis will not be reached until late next week, but after that time the hard coal output would be jeopardized by further disagreement between operators and miners. A voluntary settlement seems remote. Neither side has shown any disposition to yield an inch. The conference broke over establishment of the check off system and both contending factions have remained adamant.

President Coolidge first leaped to national prominence by his forceful handling of the Boston police strike. An almost coincidental situation may give him his first great opportunity as leader of the nation. Those close to the president said today he was going to dig into the anthracite problem with the same determination and unswerving resoluteness that marked the quelling of the Boston strike.

Three immediate plans are known to be under consideration for effecting a settlement of the strike:

1. Appointment of Secretary of Labor Davis, who returns to this country Monday, and the coal commission to act as mediators between the contending forces.

2. Summoning of operators and miners to the White House for a round table discussion.

3. Use of a threat of government seizure of the mines.

A decision may be expected shortly, possibly early next week, as the situation becomes more critical.

Labor officials have been in constant touch with all negotiations and it seemed certain today that Davis would step in, in the role of "peace-maker."

If Davis's efforts are futile, President Coolidge himself plans to summon both factions and tell them point-blank the country never will stand for a strike; that disputes must be reconciled and a steady supply of hard coal be taken from the mines for the approaching winter months. He will inform the disputants the distressing situation of last year in the bituminous field cannot be tolerated in the anthracite mines.

The threat of seizure would be the last resort. It is not believed it will be as effective in the long run as the other plans, but the threat, at least, when all else has failed, it is thought would line up public sentiment behind the administration's "no strike" edict. It is not believed either side would care to bring down deliberately the country's wrath.

Seizure might not insure the essential continuous output. Anthracite miners in Pennsylvania are required to serve a two year apprenticeship. Coal mining is a specialized trade and the ordinary laborer cannot be shoved into the mines, officials pointed out.

If this emergency were resorted to, the government, to get a steady supply, would be compelled to accede to the miners' demands in getting them to return to work. It was pointed out. It is believed the operators would hesitate to have the mines seized, and would welcome an agreement with their workers.

RONDOUT BAPTIST CHURCH THROGGED AT UNION MEMORIAL SERVICE

Eulogy by the Rev. F. W. Moot Stresses Worldwide Mourning for Safe and Sane Head of Nation—Judge Fowler Also Delivers a Brief Address.

The First Baptist Church on Wurts Street was filled with people from the downtown section of the city on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock who had gathered to pay tribute to the memory of the late President Harding.

The memorial service opened with the singing of "Nearer My God To Thee," by the large congregation with Mrs. R. P. Ingersoll presiding at the organ, the Rev. R. P. Ingersoll, pastor of the Baptist Church, had charge of the services and after the singing of the hymn he led the people in prayer.

The Rev. F. W. Moot, pastor of the Union Congregational Church, then addressed those present in a very impressive manner. The Rev. Mr. Moot said that in the course of human events nations, like individuals, have their seasons of victory and joy, and they also have their seasons of sorrow. This nation has often been called upon to go through seasons of sorrow and even of painful death. In the early days of our history when George Washington was called home, even though he had some time before retired from active participation in the affairs of government the country mourned for him as children mourn the loss of a father. After the Civil War the heart of the nation was broken and bleeding, but when Abraham Lincoln was killed by a bullet of an assassin the country was plunged into a stinging grief. When Garfield was shot a stinging bitterness went through America to think that men of the type of the assassin could possibly do such a dastardly deed. So in the course of events this new great nation of a 100,000,000 people has been called upon to bow its head in sorrow. A sorrow which is genuine and a grief which is deep.

A sorrow so genuine that statesmen, who would not stop at face the death itself, have stood by the bier of this man and wept. A sorrow so genuine that the great business of life is touched and feels that at this hour we should pause at the open sepulchre and pay our tribute of sorrow and respect.

The whole world is mourning today. In Westminster Abbey, where are buried the bodies of the great men of England, a great concourse of people are bowed in sorrow. In Athens, the home of culture and art, an assembly like this is giving an outward expression of sorrow. In Brazil and throughout all the republics of South America men are paying tribute to this man.

Why do we mourn? Not simply because a chief executive has died. That alone would not necessarily plunge this country and the world into grief. It is because of the love that this country and the world have for this man. "The ratio of our love is the measure of our sorrow."

Why do we love him? First of all we love him because of his human touch. In all walks of life, over Warren G. Harding went there seemed to be a magic touch to his life. Men could not resist his love for them and they were drawn to him. Marion, his native city, felt the touch of his human kindness, and as he rose to heights of power he didn't forget Marion. Men in places of authority always found him a brother. And so because he was a brother to humanity, humanity opened its heart to him. In the words of President Coolidge, "He was one of the most kindly leaders that a nation ever had."

We love him because of his purity of character. Few men can go through public life without having some accusation made as to the purity of their character. However, men can find nothing against this man. His beliefs on this point can best be described by his last motto in his newspaper creed, "Above all things be clean."

We love him because he was a God-fearing man. The great Christian world rejoices today even in the midst of its sorrow that it had such a leader.

We love him because he was a safe and sane leader. It came on the scene of action in very troublesome times. Just at a time when an egotistical or headstrong man would have worked great havoc. He led us in a calm and deliberate manner. I would not say that Harding will ever be placed alongside of Washington, Lincoln or Roosevelt as a statesman. We cannot give him his place in history. We are too close to him for that.

And so today as a new chapter is being written in American history our sympathy and the sympathy of the country and of the world goes out to the widow of this man and to his aged father. Some day they will meet him in another land.

Judge Fowler's Address.

After the singing of "Lead, Kindly Light," and the reading of the portions of Scripture which were read at the president's funeral in Washington, Judge Fowler delivered an address. Judge Fowler said: In the death of Warren G. Harding the world has lost a great man. I made that statement a few days ago and a friend said "he was a most lovable character but I am not sure you could call him a great man." Then I remembered that Phillips Brooks said "The man who comes to true greatness is he who has felt in some degree that his life belongs to his race, that what God gives him he gives for mankind." And so with that definition in mind I repeat that the world has lost a great man.

The millions who mourn him today think of him as our president. They may accord him as a statesman time will only tell, but as a man of this generation can speak. Although we may never have met him we feel that we know him. Why is it that we have this feeling? It is not because he had that true greatness, because he used the talents, the powers, the opportunities not for selfish ends but for the advancement of his people and mankind. So we think of him as the simplest. We think of him as a devoted man, we think of him as a courageous man. So all over our great country, the Republican, the Democrat, the Protestant, the Catholic, the Jew, the native born, the alien resident, all with sad hearts are saying, not with lip service but with real feeling, "We mourn the death of our president, our friend."

The service closed with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

CHIMES HALT MOTOR TOURISTS

The lure of the road found a successful competitor in probably more than one instance Friday at the nation's solemn hour, when tolling bells were telling of the loving tribute of a hundred million hearts.

As the chiming of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer were pausing over President Harding's favorite hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," the incessant line of cars moving over Wurts street slowed down and in a number of instances the occupants parked their cars along the curb and joined themselves with the large gathering in the church for the memorial services. One party in a Pierce Arrow with a foreign license, said afterwards to one of the officers of the congregation: "We felt that we ought to stop and though we were in a hurry to get to our destination we were amply repaid for the splendid privilege we were afforded in participating in your memorial services."

Several similar instances were noted by the members of the congregation. The Church of the Redeemer, in common with the other services arranged for the hour, rendered its memorial to the dead president with extreme but appealing simplicity. The great chiming in the tower, the beautiful tones of the organ in the well selected dirges, the vesper service which has been a feature of the church for centuries, the choir and the soloist with well rendered numbers and the pastor at his best in a ten minute eulogy, were vehicles for the expression of what was in the heart and the mind of the congregation and the nation, but it was felt that after all it was the reality and the sincerity of the emotion, that, like a great tidal wave, that has swept over American life in the last week, made this service memorable, as a fitting expression of probably the first universal patriotic sentiment since the days of the great war.

A. F. Arthur of the automobile department of the New York American, is promoting an automobile signal, which is designed to reduce accidents especially from mistaken signals.

The Safe-T-Arm is the new device and is constructed like an old time semaphore signal and can be fastened to the wind-shield within easy reach of the drivers hand. It is constructed in models for both open and closed cars. The standard positions following the universal code are used. Go—vertical; stop—45 degrees below horizontal; left—horizontal; right—45 degrees above horizontal.

RED TOP'S LECTURE

"Cock-a-doodle-do," said Red Top. Then he got upon a stump and shouted again.

"Cock-a-doodle-do," said Mrs. White Hen. "You seem to have something to say."

"Yes," said Miss Fidgety Fashionable Hen. "I think you must want us to listen to you."

"That is the way I feel," said Mrs. Brown Hen.

"The way I feel, too," said Miss Hen.

"And the way I feel," said Mrs. Hen. "I feel quite sure that you crowed in just that way, standing upon a stump as you did, because you wanted us to listen to you."

"I'm glad you took the hint," said Red Top. "Or at least I am glad that you will take the hint."

"Oh yes," said Mrs. White Hen. "I, for one, am ready to listen to you. I've got other engagements this morning. I might have a little at the dress-maker's were I a lady but I'm not and so I have no engagement of that sort, or of any sort for that matter."

"If I were a girl," said Mrs. Brown Hen. "I might have to have my skirts lengthened this morning because I had been growing so fast I had outgrown

"If I were one of the farmer's children," said Miss Brown Hen. "I might have to be shelling peas this morning, but I don't have to shell peas. I'm glad to say."

"And I might have to be cutting up the beans were I a child," said Miss Fidgety Fashionable Hen. "As it is I have no engagements."

"Well," said Red Top, the Rooster. "I am glad that none of you has an engagement. Of course, were I a business man, I might have to go to an office and sign important letters this morning but I have nothing of that sort to do. I would like to give a lecture to the barnyard."

And all the barnyard creatures gathered around Red Top as he stood on top of the stump and they listened to his lecture.

"Hens and Roosters," he began, "and Mr. President, Mr. Chairman and my honored self."

"I don't believe," interrupted another rooster, "that lecturers speak of themselves as their honored selves, and I should think you would speak first to the president and chairman."

"I would," said Red Top. "If there happened to be a president or a chairman here, but there isn't and so I just put those in to make my lecture sound fine."

"As to speaking of my honored self—well, as I am giving this lecture I can honor myself if I wish. It is a lecturer's right to praise himself if he so wants and it is better to be honest and frank about it than to appear to be so modest and yet really try to make everyone feel how fine you are. But I must get on with my lecture."

"He must get on with his lecture," cackled and crowed the barnyard creatures.

"Even if we have no other engagements we don't want to sit or stand and listen to Red Top lecturing forever," said Miss Hen.

"No a lecture should be finished before it is too late," said Mrs. Hen. "The secret of a good lecture is to be to the point."

"Well," I'll take the hint," said Red Top. "If only you let me begin and so have a chance to finish."

"Yes, he must begin if he is to finish," said Mrs. White Hen.

So all the barnyard creatures listened and Red Top began to crow again. And then he said these things:

"Barnyard friends, be good citizens. We all love our splendid barnyard. Let us love to make it the best barnyard in all these parts. And we can make it the best barnyard if we will be good citizens. Let us not run down our barnyard. Let us 'boost' our barnyard. Let us say how fine it is. We mustn't 'knock' it. We can be good citizens if we simply 'boost' instead of 'knock.' And that is the end of my lecture. I wish you all a great deal of happiness and I thank you for your attention."

"A good lecture," said Mrs. Hen. "because it was short."

SUMMERY DISHES.

During the summer one will like to have the luncheon or supper served out of doors, away from home when possible, if not on the porch or in the garden. The work is slight if all lend a hand and the change does each member of the family good.

As sandwiches are so well liked, easy to serve as well as filling and altogether satisfactory, we like to serve them in various ways and with different fillings.

One need not go to any expense for sandwich filling; the leftovers make many of them the best kind. A small piece of ham, a piece or two of leftover beefsteak if put through the meat grinder and mixed with mayonnaise, adding a drop or two of onion juice or a shaving of a clove of garlic, will provide filling for a dozen sandwiches and the seasoned meat is most palatable.

New Beets in Brown Sauce.—Cook one-half cupful of butter and one finely minced onion in a saucepan until the onion is a golden brown. Add one-fourth of a cupful of flour and stir until smooth; add one and one-half cupfuls of rich brown stock, three tablespoonfuls of tarragon vinegar and one-fourth of a cupful of ordinary cider vinegar with salt and pepper to taste. Let simmer for ten minutes in this sauce one dozen small round beets previously cooked, peeled and hot. Serve in a vegetable dish garnished with parsley.

Cake Icings for summer may be prepared with powdered sugar and a bit of cream or butter to spread over small cakes, cookies or layer cakes. There need be no sameness about the mixture, as chopped fruit, nuts or cocoa may be added to give variety. If maple flavor is liked add a few drops, or moisten the sugar with maple syrup until of the consistency to spread.

Candies may be prepared in the same way, using just enough moisture to mix. Roll in coconut, dip in melted chocolate, enclose a nut or cherry, or dip in thin orange icing for bon bons. There is no limit to the changes one may use with powdered sugar as a base.

"I would like to give a lecture," said Red Top, the Rooster. "I am glad that none of you has an engagement. ## If Hay Fever Is Needless Suffering

Weekly Health Talk
By Froude & Mac Kinnon, D's. C.

If hay fever is needless suffering, as many of its victims have learned after trying chiropractic, then chiropractic is robbing the world of another form of disease torture, for hay fever is misery.

Most of us are immune to hay fever, but some of us are easily infected at the time of year when the pollen begins to fly. Chiropractic spinal adjustments restore the natural vigor of the nerve cells and tissues of the air passages, and after this new vigor is released, the hay fever is quickly conquered.

DIVERSIFIED FARMING.

A powerful argument in favor of diversified farming is presented in the Breeder's Gazette. It is shown, for example, that last year the total value of poultry products in the United States was $884,000,000, which exceeds by $20,000,000 the total value of the 1922 wheat crop. There are more keepers of poultry than wheat growers in the country; the former as well as the latter are obliged to pay high prices for everything that they buy, and many of them could prove as readily as the wheat growers that their cash returns are "below the cost of production." Why, then, are the poultry raisers not likewise following up the politicians and calling on the government to save them from disaster? Because, unlike the wheat growers, they are not depending altogether on a single product. Says the Gazette:

Fortunately the bulk of American poultry products originates on farms which are not devoted to poultry as a specialty. Poultry is one of the numerous "eggs" in the market basket of most farmers. Wherever poultry is a specialty it is a hazardous enterprise; wherever it is an adjunct to diversified farming it is a dependable and never failing source of cash income. If the poultry industry were in the hands of specialists who had no other business, we should hear a national howl now concerning their desperate plight. Since poultry, in the main, is not a specialty product, it is bolstered up and being bolstered up by other farm products during this critical period in agriculture. Simply, some farm enterprises have been disastrously affected by the depression, but farmers who do not depend on any one crop or product for their economic salvation are coming through painfully but solvent. They do not ask politicians and the government to save them; they are saving themselves.

In other words, the farmer with "eggs" in a number of "baskets" can weather a crisis when the specialist, or one-crop farmer, will go down in disaster. Even though the prices received by the former for most of his products are lower than they ought to be in relation to the prices he is required to pay for the bulk of the commodities he must purchase, as farmers everywhere now hold to be the case, the number and variety of his "eggs" and "baskets" enable him to pull through. The Breeder's Gazette finds this to be true even at such a time as the present when no farmer is quite free from the "unrest, anxiety, fear and sense of injustice at the hands of other interests" which are now "more widespread and acute than they have ever been before in America." Why, then, do so many farmers persist in specializing or devoting themselves to one crop, which is plainly more hazardous than the diversified system? Because the one-crop method requires less mental alertness, less watchfulness, less work. On this subject the Breeder's Gazette pointedly says:

We do not contend that diversified farming is a panacea for all the ills of agriculture. We insist, however, that in the long run, and over a period of years, it is the soundest and safest system of farming that has ever been developed. It is easier to be a specialist, growing one crop, than to be a successful diversified farmer. The latter must think and work harder than the average one-crop farmer. Moreover, he must be a versatile, broad-minded and competent individual. All farmers are not qualified successfully to conduct a diversified farming business. There are many one-crop farmers because they are the sons of one-crop farmers and have lived all their lives in specialized crop zones. It is difficult for middle-aged or elderly men to change their cropping habits. Existing conditions require the modification of old habits and the adoption of new methods—changes sure to be accompanied by protests.

In a letter written by a senator, now dead, it was rather cynically remarked that the chief requisite for a vice-presidential candidate was the ability and disposition to furnish a large part of the campaign fund. In some cases the choice has seemingly been made with precisely that end in view, but Calvin Coolidge had no "barrel" and was not nominated even to placate a defeated faction. It is true that it looked like good policy to make a New Englander the running mate of the Ohio standard bearer, but all the accounts tend to show that Mr. Coolidge's nomination was solely the result of the popularity following his firm handling of the Boston police strike in 1919.

In order that there might be no interregnum, President Coolidge was sworn in by his father, a notary public, by the light of an oil lamp at 2:47 a. m., in the village of Plymouth, Vermont. In the picture-sequenced of its surroundings the ceremony suggested the early days of the republic rather than the materially developed conditions of the present.

Lake Erie is a bigger proposition for the swimmer than the Hellespont or even the English Channel, and by swimming from Police Pass, Lighthouse, Ontario, to Lorain, Ohio, in twenty hours and fifteen minutes Carbis A. Walker of Cleveland has eclipsed all previous performers from love-lorn Leander down.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. Are there many insects mentioned in the Bible? Yes, as insect life is very abundant in warm countries, it would be strange if it were not mentioned in Biblical literature. Any Bible dictionary will show you the references. Locusts, grasshoppers, fleas, flies, bees (or at least honey), spiders, moths, worms, etc., are frequently named, and even in the New Testament some mention of insect life occurs.

2. Do black and white creepers feed in the characteristic way of warblers? It is not safe to call any way of warblers "characteristic," since they are a big family with many differences. But all are restless in motion. The black and white warbler sticks pretty faithfully to tree trunks and main branches, and while on them "creeps" or progresses upward in zig-zags, but not in the steady spiral of the brown creeper. This warbler is likely to flutter restlessly from side to side of the tree, or from tree to tree. It also flits somewhat among the twigs, or will hurry over old fences, rotted logs, etc.

3. How big can a snapping turtle grow? I found an enormous one about 2 feet long, but I didn't know they grew so big.

A common adult snapping turtle, chelydra serpentina, would measure about 12 inches length of upper shell or carapace, and weigh around 35 pounds. The chances are your specimen was the so-called alligator snapping turtle, macrochelys lacertina, about twice the size of a common snapper, weighing in some cases over 100 pounds. It looks and behaves much like its smaller relative.

CENTRAL HUDSON EXPANDS IN NORTH

Through Upper Hudson Electric and Railroad Company It Acquires Atlantic Light and Power Company.

Since 1908 both the Atlantic Light and Power Company and the Upper Hudson Electric and Railroad Company have been distributing and selling electricity in the villages of Ravena and Coeymans. It is understood that in the old days a bitter rivalry existed between the two interests and this continued until 1916 when the property was taken over by the American Gas Company. In 1920, the Upper Hudson Electric and Railroad Company was purchased by the interests that operate the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Company, since which time the Upper Hudson Company has been operated as a part of the Central Hudson system, and preparations have been made to furnish better service in Ravena and Coeymans through the cooperation of the two interests or otherwise. In 1922, the construction of a new and larger transmission line from the Catskill substation was started and recently when a large engine of the Atlantic Light & Power Company broke down, Central Hudson System men and transformers were rushed by automobile trucks from Kingston to Ravena, a 500 horse power emergency substation was set up and before evening on the day of the breakdown Central Hudson System current was being supplied to the Atlantic Light and Power Company in sufficient quantity to meet all the requirements of that company's customers, and this temporary connection is still in use.

Recent negotiations have resulted in the sale of the Atlantic Light & Power Company by the Briggs interests and the taking over of all the franchises in Albany county outside of the town of Coeymans by the Municipal Gas Company of Albany. The property and franchises in the town of Coeymans and the town of New Baltimore are to be taken over by the Upper Hudson Electric and Railroad Company. A no public utility company without the consent of the public service commission, application will have to be made to the commission in this case, and for this reason further development in the town of Coeymans will have to be deferred until the commission's consent has been obtained. If this consent is given, the electric lines of the Atlantic Light and Power Company will be permanently connected with the transmission lines of the Central Hudson System, and a new substation will be constructed in Ravena to take care of the entire future requirements of the territory, including the large power business now being supplied.

The Central Hudson system has been developed progressively during the past twenty years and has gradually extended its service to most all the communities in the Central Hudson valley. This growth represents the natural evolution of the business of electric supply in harmony with the development of electric science. Step by step long distance transmission has been tried out and larger and more efficient generating plants have been built so that in these days a large number of communities can be most efficiently supplied over trunk lines carrying electric energy from the most efficient sources of generation instead of small generating plants locally. Everywhere in the Central Hudson valley the public have been keenly interested in the development of their own "super-power" system. The customers of the system means practically all of the public have furnished the money for this development through the purchase of securities. Altogether there are about 10,000 security holders and every community is represented in the list, so that the business is owned almost entirely by the people living in the territory served.

As a result of this form of ownership it has been possible for the management to build efficient electric generating plants for both steam and water power and to build a transmission system throughout the territory, designed to take care of the entire territory.

It is interesting to note that William Spencer Murray an electrical engineer of national reputation, an ardent advocate of super-power development work, has his home in Catskill. Mr. Murray headed the super-power survey committee appointed by congress, and the work of this committee resulted in a report to congress pointing the way to the development of a gigantic electric super-power system for the eastern states to make the best use of natural resources and for the best economic development of industry in these states. In any such plan the Central Hudson system will play an important part.

CROP ESTIMATES FOR STATE CUT

Dry Weather Injurious—Reduction of Million Bushels Each in Corn and Oats; Potatoes and Apples Two Million Bushels Each.

By Telegram to the Freeman.

Albany, Aug. 11.—Dry weather during July caused a sharp reduction in crop prospects in New York state according to John B. Shepard, who estimates the crops for the New York state department of farms and markets and the United States department of agriculture. Since last month the forecasts of the production of corn and oats in this state have each been cut by a million bushels, the hay estimate is a hundred thousand tons below that of last month, and the prospective crops of potatoes and apples each have been reduced two million bushels. Unless offset by higher prices these changes mean a reduction of $7,000,000 in the incomes of farmers of this state.

Pastures, also, are poorer than they have been in any previous August for twenty years, with the possible exception of 1911, and the milk flow has in consequence been reduced. Buffalo reports the driest July on record and in Chautauque, Schuyler and Jefferson counties, and in the circle of counties around the Catskills the drought has materially reduced crop prospects. Outside of these counties the drought has not been severe enough to cause crop prospects to fall much below the usual average.

The haying season is nearly over and a yield of a little better than 14 tons per acre has been secured. This is as much per acre as is usually produced but on account of scarcity of labor somewhat more hay than usual is being left unharvested. Wheat and rye have been cut and some fields have been threshed. Wheat is yielding on the average 20.2 bushels per acre or one-half bushel less than usual. Rye is yielding 16.3 bushels or one bushel per acre less than usual. The harvesting of oats has begun and the yield is expected to be about thirty bushels per acre, or two bushels less than usual. Buckwheat also has been adversely affected by the dry weather and its present condition is 5 per cent below the usual average.

In the case of beans, the dry weather has resulted in an unusual freedom from diseases, and prospects are the best in fifteen years. The condition of potatoes indicates that with average weather from now on, the yield will be only 94 bushels per acre. This would be the lowest yield secured since that of 70 bushels in 1916, the crop that preceded the food riots. The total potato crop of the state is forecast at 30 million bushels compared with 37 million last year, 34 million in 1921 and 40 million in 1920. The size of the potato crop, however, depends largely on the weather during August and September. Corn is expected to show about an average yield. It has good color but many fields are late and will need warm weather to mature before frost. With the exception of June, the average temperature in this state has been below normal every month this year.

Grapes will be a good average crop. Peaches will produce a third less than last year but a third more than usual. There will be about one-half as many pears as there were last year, or about three-fourths of an average crop. The outlook for apples is not as good as it was a month ago and only 27 million bushels are now expected. This is about an average crop but seems small compared with the 36 million bushel crop harvested last year.

Sanford Short of 90 Foxhall avenue, escaped injury but Roy Van Buren of 234 Broadway and Charles Elmendorf of 27 Cedar street, were slightly injured when the Ford car they were riding in turned over at Main and Green streets Friday evening at 7:15 o'clock.

The Ford car was owned by Charles Rhodes of Brown avenue. According to the police report of the accident the Ford was going north on Green street and when near Main street, Short saw a car coming up the hill and to avoid hitting the other car turned too quickly and one of the tires blew out causing the Ford to upset.

The Ford patrol, the police department conveyed Elmendorf to the Kingston City Hospital where it was found that he was not badly hurt and he later went home. Van Buren was taken to the office of Dr. Sibley on Main street where it was found that he was not seriously hurt and after having his wounds dressed he went home. The Ford car brought up against a tree and was considerably damaged.

Lester Schryver of 75 Pine Grove avenue reported an accident with a man named TenHagen at the Howers gas station on the Rosendale road at 7:30 o'clock that evening in which both cars were damaged but no one hurt.

Wesley D. Finger of 17 South Wall street at 10 o'clock Friday evening reported that a Ford car had struck his Oakland car on the Gaugier road damaging it somewhat. The Ford did not stop. He furnished the police with the license number of the Ford car.

At 5 o'clock Friday afternoon a Buick car driven by Daniel O'Brien of No. 45 Sterling street and a Durant car driven by Edgar DeGraff of 81 Lincoln street collided at Pearl and Green streets. The Buick car was going east on Pearl street and the Durant car was going north on Green street. According to the police report the tracks in the road showed the Durant was over the man hole in the center of the street when the cars hit. The Durant turned to the right and the Buick to the left. After hitting the Durant car ran into a tree in front of the residence of W. R. Harrison. The Durant had the left front wheel damaged while the Buick had the whole front end damaged. Both cars were towed to a garage for repairs. No one was injured. In the car with DeGraff was Mrs. Auchmoody of Hurley and in O'Brien's car were John O'Brien, 44 Hasbrouck avenue, Thomas O'Brien, 45 Sterling street, and William Lechive, Ora Place.

BRITAIN FRIENDLY BUT EMPHATIC

In Expressing Disapproval of French Ruhr Policy—Meanwhile, French Exactions Increase in Severity.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Aug. 11.—The foreign office is expected to forward a note to Paris this evening expressing Great Britain's disapproval of the French Ruhr policy.

It is understood the communication will reject the French suggestion of debt cancellation. According to authoritative sources, the note will maintain Great Britain can not make any further concessions to France "unless the French are willing to take a more reasonable view of the reparations crisis."

The note is said to be friendly in tone, but emphatic in wording. There has been an under current of dissatisfaction with Premier Baldwin's reparations views for several days. He has been accused of not having any definite policy. Also suspicion has been aroused that he has given way to the pro-French die hards in the cabinet, agreeing to support Franco after a show of apparent opposition.

Advice from Coblenz said the French are imposing stricter penalties upon the Germans for disorders in the occupied areas. German workers who refused to return to their posts in coal mines were sentenced to five years imprisonment. Similar penalties were imposed for interference with Germans who were at work.

Also waking the minds of the audience to the lives of our noted presidents who have gone to the great beyond. Prayer was also offered for our president, Calvin Coolidge, asking for him long life, a successful administration and splendid health. The audience consisted of guests from the New Russell House and neighboring hotels and cottages. Many a tear was seen in the eyes of the people assembled while the services were being rendered. The ceremony took place on the lawn. One of the most impressive numbers was the sounding of taps by Captain Beyer, retired.

Following is the program given: "Star Spangled Banner." Address—Rev. C. F. W. Ahrens of the Baptist Church at Phenicia. Reading the XXIII Psalm. Hymn—"Nearer My God To Thee." Taps. Prayer. America.

The services were conducted by Captain Beyer and Mrs. G. J. Paul of New York city. Some three hundred guests were present from the Randall House, Howland House, Mountain Breeze House, Mt. Pleasant Villa and several from the village of Phenicia.

MOONSHINE FEUD IN KENTUCKY

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Hazard, Ky., Aug. 11.—Two men are dead and seven alleged moonshiners are in jail here today as the result of a feud outbreak sweeping this section of Kentucky's mountains.

An organized band of moonshiners in Perry county has destroyed the meagre telephone system of that remote district, and the only information available is that brought in by messengers.

Dinnie Williams killed Hiram Middleton, in a quarrel at Kilday, Parland county, late yesterday, officers learned. They arrested Williams and were enroute to the county jail on a train crowded with miners returning from work when friends of Middleton fired into the train, killing Williams instantly. Arrests were expected today.

The seven prisoners taken were brought in by the sheriff's posse which went to the rescue of a small squad of dry raiders, headed by R. L. Stewart, state prohibition agent, and based on Lost Creek. The dry agents seem to have scattered into adjoining counties, and rumors are rife hereabouts.

"DRIVE TO END DRIVES" FOR VETS' MOUNTAIN CAMP.

The children of New York state, with their dimes, are underwriting "Drive to end drives" being conducted by the American Legion to raise an endowment fund of $2,500,000 for the veterans' mountain camp at Big Tupper Lake in the Adirondacks.

The boys and girls whose big brothers went to war for their country have been asked to do their bit now. Those who do their bit will become members of the "Junior Legion" and will be given buttons which they can wear as proudly as their older buddies wear the American Legion button.

Cards holding ten dimes each are being distributed to the youngsters of the state through the American Legion posts and the Women's Auxiliary. Every boy and girl is expected to take one of the cards and have it filled with dimes. Then it is to be turned in to the person who sent to headquarters of the veterans' mountain camp drive at No. 110 East 42nd street, New York city.

The dimes will help defray all expenses of the drive, so that when their fathers and mothers and big brothers contribute to the $2,500,000 fund all of the money received can be used to care for those wounded and disabled ex-soldiers who cannot trace their disabilities to the war and, therefore, are unable to receive government aid.

A gold button showing the war to be a Junior Legion leader of the state of New York will be given to the boy or girl who sends in the largest number of cards filled with dimes. Each child who sends in one hundred filled cards will be a staff officer of the Junior Legion, and will receive a bronze button. A captain's button will be given to every boy or girl who turns in ten filled cards.

A Junior Legion membership button will be given to every child who sends in one card filled with dimes. Shows that the boy or girl has done his or her bit.

The cover of the dime card bears the following appeal to the children of the state:

"Help put a sick soldier in this bed and bring him home well."

He is survived by two sons and two daughters. The people of the place wish to extend their heartfelt sympathy to the friends and relatives in the hours of bereavement.

Originality.
The most original authors of modern times are so, not because they produce what is new, but only because they are able to say things the like of which seems never to have been said before. Thus the best sign of originality lies in taking up a subject and then developing it so fully as to make every one confess that he would hardly have found so much in it.—Goethe.

Wise Is Youth.
A few evenings ago, a little girl, three years old, was enjoying some Mother Goose jingles on her father's knee. Little Bo Peep was being rehearsed and when the place was reached where, in the rhyme, it says "bringing their tails behind them," the father purposely changed it to read, "bringing their tails before them," "bringing their tails before them," the girl promptly answered, "No, it was a sheepsake."—Indianapolis News.

But He Doesn't Think So.
The world could easily get along without the man who never makes a mistake.

At half after six o'clock the guests sat down to a beautifully laden table, the centerpiece of which was a large wedding cake decorated with a tiny bride and groom. There were guests present from Amsterdam, New York city, New Jersey, Brooklyn and Kingston. Mr. and Mrs. DuBois were the recipients of not only a multitude of congratulations but of many beautiful gifts, including a complete set of silver.

SAFFORD AND SCUDDER'S
WINDOW ELOQUENTLY SAD

That is the way that Mrs. — described the new mahogany and oak-finished window of the Safford and Scudder store on Wall street which has been so appropriately and artistically arranged as a memorial to President Harding. The floor of the window and a low dais placed upon it were covered with a drapery of black. Upon this black dais, the picture of our dead president was placed, with just a fold of a large American flag, suspended at half-mast drooping over a corner of the picture, in front of which a single rose drooped against the dais and picture, as though it too, had met a great loss. Our President's favorite flower was the rose, and the blossom that was chosen for this honor was very appropriately a "Columbia Rose." At the left of the picture was a large vase of flowers, red, white and blue and lavender, a cluster of "Snow from the Mountains," bending toward the picture. Just below the picture to the right, and throwing a soft light upon it was a cut glass electric lamp and globe. Against the lamp was placed a card bearing the words of one of our President's favorite hymns, "Lead, Kindly Light." In the background of the window to the left, on an easel-like arrangement was to be seen and read, the proclamations of President Coolidge and Mayor Crane, making Friday, August 10, 1923, a day of mourning. The subdued single light at night made the memorial window eloquently sad.

KINGSTON REGULARS PLAY
OLIVE BRIDGE SUNDAY.

The fast Kingston Regulars will travel to Olive Bridge Sunday for the fourth game of the series. The Olive Bridge team has 2 to 1 on the Regulars. North or Traphagen will be in the box for the home team, while Baker will toss 'em over for the Regulars.

Manager Brown wishes to state he refused to let his team play the Studebakers last Sunday because the grounds were not in fit condition for a game, being full of mud holes. The Regulars lost to the Studebakers early in the season 8 to 1 but have strengthened since then.
